

Week 8 | The Practice Test

Objectives:

- Use each person in the group to plan a ministry project

It all comes down to this:

For the last 7 weeks, we've learned something about ourselves, we've learned about each other, and we've learned more about Jesus...at least that was the goal. For our final session, all of these things will come together. Using each person's strengths and creativity, plan a ministry project. It's up to the group to determine the who, what, when, where, why, and how. These ideas may come from the personal passions and burdens of people within the group. There is no limit to what the project consists of, but each project should look to meet the needs of people as well as share the gospel with them. When it comes to resources and the costs of whatever ideas you come up with, challenge your faith to believe that God can provide the needs. Remember, that God is most revealed when we go beyond the limits of our own abilities and resources.

Some questions to consider:

Will this be a recurring ministry or a one time occurrence?

Will there be resources or costs that will be needed?

Who will head up the ministry project and will you open participation up to outside people?
